General Fitz-Hugh Lec's Last Cent That Was Presented to Mrs. Gibbon. Major General John Gibbon thus describes his meeting with General Fitz-Hugh Lee at the McLean house, Appomattox county, Va., in April, 1865, at the time of the Confederate surrender: "Going to the door, I found General Fitz Lee seated on his horse and looking, as I thought, somewhat uneasy. He had been a cadet under me at West Point, and I had not seen him for years. As I looked at him a vision of the past came up before me, and I could think only of a little rollicking fellow dressed in cadet gray, whose jolly songs and gay spirits were the life of his class. My salu-tation of 'Hello, Fitz! Get off and come in,' seemed to put him at his ease at once and brought him to his feet. He came into the house and told me his story. Before leaving, with a grim humor, he took from his pocket a five dollar Confederate note, and, writing across its face, For Mrs. Gibbon, with the compliments of Fitz Lee,' he said, 'Send that to your wife and tell her it's the last cent I have in the world."

Didn't She Lay Doorknobs?

Dr. Henry Van Dyke tells a story of an old Irishman who was engaged in the business of chicken raising near Princeton. One day a traveling man expressed surprise at the use of so much cornmeal at feeding time and suggested that the meal be mixed with sawdust, insisting that the hens would not know the difference. A few months later the traveling man was again in the community, and he asked if the new diet had been tried and what the result had been. "It works beautifully," was the reply. "See that old yellow hen? Well, I tried her on half and half, and she liked it so well I changed to all sawdust, and the last time she hatched three of the chicks had wooden legs and a fourth was a woodpecker.'

That was a novel expedient by which one young woman was enabled to see King Edward during the coronation crush in London. Her story shows the value of di-plomacy. "I was right behind, plomacy. "I was right behind, ma'am," she said, relating her expe-rience to her mistress. "'Oh,' I said, 'I shan't see anything in this crowd.' And then a young man that I hadn't noticed said, 'Why don't you faint? 'Faint!' I said. 'Who's going to faint?' And then who's going to faint? And then he up and calls, 'Here's a young woman fainting!' And a p'liceman come through, and they carried me right to the front. I see splendid. Yes'm, the young man helped the p'liceman."

A Singular Competition.

Agular contest has just taken near Birmingham. Stones placed a yard apart for a hun-yards, and a local butcher had ertaken to pick each one up septetely and return it to a basket at a e end of the line. The time allowed to accomplish this performance was fifty-five minutes, and the butcher succeeded in finishing in forty-eight minutes. The task is not so simple as it first appears, for when in the seventies he was running something like 150 yards for each stone, which was increased to 200 at the finish. In this way he covered a considerable distance—it covered a considerable dist rious packing establishments in the United States for the domestic market as well, we find that it reaches the enormous total of 1,000,000 carloads, valued at $2,000,000,000, Added to this is the value of the many byproducts of the packing house, which amount to many millions more.-Leslie's Monthly.

New Use For Chamois Skins.

A new way to use chamois skin has come to light, and doilies in the natural vivid yellow or the gray and red shades which are to be found among art furnishings decorate the polished top of the luncheon table. Of course these leather mats are decorated, and opportunity is thus offered for the amateur to do some effective work, although no particular amount of skill is required. Roses, chrysanthemums and nasturtiums make excellent subjects when due regard is paid to the color
